To Miss G-ON THE DEATH OF HER PATHER. O! Mary, dry that falling tear, That tear which does thy check bedew; Nor longer o'er a Father's bier, Thy mournful, plaintive notes renew.

O! grant thy sighs some blest reprieve,
Those sighs with which thy beart's oppress'd,
Do, to thy grief some respite give,
And to thy throbbing bosom, rest.

What, though thy Pather is no more, Though he on earth no longer dwells, ite's reached that blost, that peaceful shore Where sorrow's billow never swells,

Where care no more shall ver his soul, Nor troubled passions ever rise, He's gam'd the happy, wish'd-for goal, His home—the mansion of the skies.

No longer then his death deplore, But with thy sighs—thy tears remove, For though on earth you'll meet no more, You'll meet in that grand home above. BLOCKLEY BARD.

" ONE GLASS MORE." Shay, mortal stay! nor heedless thus Thy sure destruction scal; Within that cup there lurks a curse, Which all who drink shall feel: Disease and death forever nigh, Stand ready at the door, And eager wait to hear the cry, Oh give me "one glass more."

Go, view that prison's gloomy cells—
Their pallid tenants scan;
Gaze—gaze upon these earthly hells,
And ask whence they began;
Had these a tongue—Oh, man thy cheek
The answer'd crimson o'er;

Had these a tongue, they'd to thee speak
And cry the "one glass more." Behold that wretched female form, An outcast from her home; Bleach'd in affliction's blighting storm,

OLD GRIMES Tune-John Gilpin was a citizen.

Old Grime's is dead-that good old man, We ne'er shall see him more! o wear a long black coat All button'd down before.

His heart was open as the day, His feelings all were true, His hair was some inclin'd to grey-He wore it in a queue, Whene'er was heard the voice of pain, His breast with pity burn'd— The large round head upon his cane, From ivory was turn'd.

Thus, ever prompt at pity's call, the knew no base design— His eyes were dark, and rather small,

He liv'd at peace with all mankind, In friendship he was true; His coat had pocket holes behind— His pantaloons were blue.

Unharm'd-the sin which earth pollutes, He pass'd securely o'er; And never wore a pair of boots For thirty years or more.

But poor ald Grimes is now at rest. Nor fears misfortune's frown; fle had a double breasted vest-The stripes ran up and down

He modest merit sought to find, And pay it its desert: lie had no malice in his mind— No ruffles on his shirt,

His neighbours he did not abuse, Was sociable and gay; He were large buckles in his shoes,

And chang'd them every day. His knowledge, hid from public guze, fie did not bring in view.

Nor made a noise town-ineeting days, As many people do.

His worldly goods he acver threw In trust to fortune's chances; But iiv'd, as all his brothers do, In easy circumstances.

Thus, undieturb'd by anxious care, His peaceful moments ran; And every body said he was A fine old gentleman.

Good people all, give cheerful thought To Grimen's memory,
As doth his cousin, Esek Short,
Who made this postry.

On the uncertainties of Life.

So great are the uncertainties of all hu nan calculations that no one can say to-day what may not happen on the morrow.How many are the instances which almost every hour meet our observation, of individuals, in the blooming period of their existence, called away from this nether world to give an account of their past conduct, as they submissively how before the throne of him who rules both the heaven and the earth! No sooner have we deposited in the silent grave, the remains of one whom we have perhaps highly respected, or whom we have long loved, than another calls for the same tribute of respect. The old, the young, the sedate and the gay, all alike are called from amongst us. Death pays no respect to persons: the rich and the poor, the great and the humble, are doomed to moulder in the tomb, for " from dust we came, and unto dust we must return." It behoves us then to be prepared for that trying hour when the Almighty Disposer of events may think proper to call us away, for we know not when our turn may come, We cannot see into futurity; but as time rolls on, and as we wane into eternity, our joys and our pleasures are only in the present-we scarcely bestow a thought on the casualties of uncertain life, but presumptuously calculate on length of years, although we every day see the futility of such

Let honesty be our guide, truth our ambition; let us always willingly " do unto others as we would they should do unto us;" let us bear good-will to all men, envy none. rather pity than despise our enemies; let us joy in a clear conscience, and weep when it is sullied with any impurity. We may then regard the approach of death with a tection, and you looking round and seeing calm screnity and resignation to the will of our Almighty Father.

Those who are prejudiced, or enthusiastic, live and move, and think and act, in an atmosphere of their own conformation .-The delusion so produced is sometimes deplorable, sometimes ridiculous, always remediless. No events are too great, or too little, to be construed by such persons into peculiar or providential corroboratives or hogs, &c. with a few acres of corn nearly consequences of their own morbid hallucinations. An old maiden lady, who was a most determined espouser of the cause of the Pretender, happened to be possessed of in this hope, for while he was struggling a beautiful canary bird, whose vocal powers were the annoyance of one ha fof the neighbourhood, and the admiration of the other. Lord Peterborough was very solicitous to procure this bird, as a present to a favourite female, who had set her heart on being mistress of this little musical wonder. Neither his lordship's entreaties, nor his bribes could prevail; but so able a negotiator, was tunity of changing the bird, and of substituting another in its cage during some lucky moment, when its vigilant protectress was off guard. The changeling was precisely respect which alone constituted its value: it was a perfect mute, and had more taste for seeds than for songs. Immediately after this manœuvre, that battle which utterly ruined the hopes of the Pretender, took place. A decent interval had elapsed when his Lordship summed up resolution to call again on the old lady-in order to smother all suspicions of the trick he had played upon her, he was about to affect a great anxiety for the possession of the bird, but she saved him all trouble on that score, by anticipating, as she thought, his errand, exclaiming, "Oho, my Lord, then you are come again I presume, to coax me out of my dear little idol, but it is all in vain, he is now dearer to me than ever, I would not part with him for his cage full of gold. Would you believe it my Lord? from the moment that his gracious Sovereign was defeated, " The sweet little fellow has not uttered a single note !" Mr. Lackington, the great bookseller, when young, was locked up in order to prevent his attendance at the methodist meeting in Taunton. He informs us, that in a fit of superstition, he opened the bible for directions what to do. The very first words he hit upon were these, " He has given his angels charge over thee, least at any time thou shouldst dash thy foot enough for me; so without a moment's hesitation, I ran up two pair of stairs to my room, and out of the window I leaped to the great terror of my poor mistress. It appears that he encountered more angles in his fall than angels, as he was most intolerably bruised, and bet a quite unable to rise was carried back, and put to bed for a fortnight. " I was ignorant enough," says he, u to think that the Lord had not weed me very well on this occasion?" and it is most likely that he did not put so high a trust in such presages for the future.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in the Wes-tern country to a friend in Michmond.

"You wish to know whether those who have failed in the Northern States, and emigrated to this country, particularly those who have taken the benefit of the Insolvent law in their native State, are ever troubled by their old creditors? I will not say all are, but as far as my knowledge extends, four out of five are : and that very seriously .-To give you a more correct idea, I will relate a case that came partly within my own

Mr. N. B. of Pennsylvania, failed in the year 1817, was unable to obtain a release from his creditors, consequently had to take the benefit of the Insolvent law; then thro' his friends, raised a little money and came with his family (which consisted of his wife and five children) to this country; he then proceeded as emigrants without funds generally do-settled on government land, or rather stopt on it, and commenced building a cabin; no trifling job to a man unaccus-tomed to labor. The waggon was substituted for a dwelling, while this was done. Before the cabin was completed, the last dollar of his money was consumed. At this point, my dear sir, I wish you to reflect a moment, and place yourself in his situation, in a distant and strange land, not a human being within several miles; with an amiable wife who had been tenderly brought up, accustomed to move only in the genteel circles of life, with five interesting children, true philosopher; he would leave his family in the morning a little before day, and walk 5, 6 or 7 miles, as the case might be, and engage in day labour, for which he obtained good wages, labour at that time being in demand, carrying with him his gun, by which he was enabled, generally, to pro-cure some game, on which his family for the most part lived. In this way by the dint of industry and perseverance, in about 18 months he had a tolerable stock of cattle ready to pull, which altogether justified him with a hope that in a little time he would enjoy some of the comforts of life; but, poor man, he was not permitted long to indulge against misfortune, at the expense of great privation and peril, his remorseless creditors had an agent employed to watch over him, as a hawk would over its prey, and as soon as it was thought he had enough gathered together, he was directed to make an attack, which he did-suit was commenced, he being unable to give security, an exeture, the whole being sold for eash, brought | and to strike an adversary on the ground ges. This was immediately followed by another execution; there being no propera scene was exhibited, which I will not I think a heart of adamant would have melted into sorrow: nay, I think the angel of mercy would have hid her face in the bosom of pity. The next day his wife and two children were taken sick; those facts being represented, he was liberated upon entering into an arrangement, which made him liable to be remanded back to prison at any moment. In a few days the eldest child died; the father made application to a joiner for a coffin; the joiner having a asked if he had the money to pay for it .-Being answered no, the joiner informed he could not make it. Mr. B. then procured hammer, and made the coffin, or rather the box, himself, and brought it home; he had dig the grave, his own having been sold a unfortunately they are of frequent occurcountry, and return to their native state, on that very account, and many more would go if they were able."

Aphorism .- Hypocrisy is the necessary burden of villainy; and affectation the chosen trapping of folly : the one completes a villain, the other only finishes a fop.

Pleasure - Fly all pleasure which may be followed by repentance; and taste none to satiety. These are the two rules of a against a stone," This, says he, was quite sures.

From the New Monthly Magazine. ENGLISH PUBILISM.

A pugilistic pasticcio at the Fives Court in St. Martin's-street. I had long been anxious to witness a good exhibition of this sort, and the present being for Tom Bel-cher's benefit, who is a great favourite with the Fancy, afforded a good opportunity of the Fancy, afforded a good opportunity of gratifying my curiosity. A large crowd was assembled in the street for some time before the doors were opened, and the general eagerness to get in occasioned a possiderable crush. Not that there was any thing to be gained by this impetuosity; for as we stood in the area of the Fives Court, in the middle of which was raised the platform for the combatants, those who came last were the combatants, those who came last were as well placed as those who came first. The diversion began with clumsy sparring between some young beginners, who were desirous of attracting notice as candidates for puglistic honors. There was little skill or pugilistic honors. There was little skill or science in the first setting-toof these heroes, and the little they had was lost in the irrita-tion produced by the first round, so that the contest soon became a mere rivalry of hard hits, which was put an end to when the company thought they were sufficiently company thought they were sufficiently glutted with the flavour of each other's knuckles, by a cry of "enough! enough!" A general shower of silver and copper then took place, of which these worthies seemed to bide the pelting with great glue, so that the proverb of "more kicks then coppers" could not, I hope, be applicable to aither. At last we had a rich scientific display of the whole art of attack and defence, by Spring and Harmer, and Belcher and Eales. Spring and Harmer, and Belcher and Eales. Whatever objections may be made to a prize fight, there can surely be none to the muffled mimickry of a sparring-match.— It is impossible not to admire the symmetry of the combatants who, stripped to the waist and in all the exertion of nerve and muscle, might often furnish a study to the sculptor. And then to see them with eye fixed on eye:-to read as it were the conception of the intended blow in the mind before the hand has had time to carry the will into effect; to watch the awful business of preparation-the parly of provocationand all the graceful variety of action and pos ture that arise out of the rapid succession of hitting, stopping, manauvring, rallying, advancing and retreating—this is a fine sight, and even ladies might look on, without be-ing shocked, at so bloodless and blameless a spectacle of human exertion. The Fancy, as the amateurs of the art of boxing are called, appear to form a dis-tinct class among the innumerable sects and parties into which England is divided. They are by no means confined to the lower orders, but may reckon on a large proportion of rank and talent amongst their numbers. To understand the theory, if not the practice, of boxing, is considered in this country as one of the accomplishments of a gentleman. The great professor of the pugilistic art, Mr. Jackson, has a spacious school in the most fashionable street in London; and here may be contemplated a picture of the " youth of England," which will verify at a glance the assertion of Burke -- that the age of Chivalry is over. Tilts and tournaments have had their day; squires have been transformed into bottle holders; and though the ring still retains its name, it has strangely changed its signification. Something of the spirit of chivalry, however, has survived its fall, and still regulates the contests of the ring. To shake hands is alcution was soon obtained, which swept all ways the prologue of a battle, as the pledge from him, even to the little household furni- of fair hostility between the combatants; not to be easily foiled. He took an oppor- but little more than paid the cost and char- would still be considered a disgrace to pugilism. I have always admired the trait of generous forbearance which is recorded ty, they seized upon the body and carried of the famous Chicken in his battle with it to prison; the morning this took place, Jem Belcher. He had given his adversary a facer that laid him sprawling upon his like the original, except in that particular pretend to describe, but only observe, that back on the ropes which encircled the ring, and when he had an opportunity of repeating his blow, he refrained from taking advantage of the occasion. A sentiment of compassion for his old associate prevailed over the passion of the moment, and contenting himself with shaking his fist over his prostrate antagonist, his feelings found a vent in the following strange but characteristic expression: " D-n thee, Jem, I won't burt thee !" The phraseology indeed of the Fancy in general, is pecuprevious knowledge of his circumstances, liar to themselves, and they may be almost asked if he had the money to pay for it.— said to speak a language of their own.— Some of their terms are humorous enough to deserve recording. When a man apa few low priced boards, some nails and a pears to advantage out of his clothes, he is said to buff well; to knock a man down is to floor him; a blow in the mouth is a then three miles to go to borrow a spade to mugger; and if in addition to this, an injury should be done to teeth, it is called a ratfew days before by the sheriff. Was this a tling of the box of dominos; the old phrase solitary case, it would not be so bad; but of a punch in the ge-ts is now termed an attack upon the victualling office; and all rence. It is a fact, that many leave this the varieties of punishing are designated by such appellations as-A lashing hitter-a swishing hitter-or a rum customer-I venture to set down at random a few specimens of their slang which happened to continually exclaiming, " Burn my breeches;" another, with a higher reach of im-

| sun, Sir, lets the planets dance about him and sends a comet at 'em." There seems indeed about all this fraternity a quaint humour, which enlivens their conversation with a raciness of repartee that cannot fail The following dialogue which passed in our hearing, may perhaps serve as an example: -" I say, Tom, have you heard what has happened to Bick Symonds?" " No," an-swered Tom, " not I; what! is he dead?" Why, if he a'nt, they have used him very ill, for they buried him last Saturday."

But enough of the race of prize-fighters. They are all much indebted to Mr. Jackson, who has given a sort of respectability to their vocation, while his school has apread a general taste for the noble art of fisticusts. As he is probably the finest model of Herculean proportion that has appeared for many years, I record a few particulars of his size and assume as well. his size and stature, so well as some feath of his strength. His height is sive feet eleven inches, and he weighs within half a pound of fifteen stone in his clothes. Some time ago by lifted 84b. on his little finger, and wrote his name John Jackson, on the wall of Alderman Combes's drawing-room. On another occasion he lifted 2 cwt. with his teeth, and 10 cwt. with both his hands, He has very appropriately placed on the wall of his school a fine engraving, repre-senting an Italian scene, in which the usage of the stiletto is exemplified; from which, I suppose he would lead us to infer, that it is better to teach men the use of their fists than to leave it to their own malice to suggest more mischievous weapons.

Anecdotes of Distinguished Characters.

Charles V. in his intervals of relaxation, used to retire to Brussels. He was a prince curious to know the sentiments of his meanest subjects concerning himself and his administration; therefore often went out incog. and mixed himself in such companies and conversation as he thought proper -One night, his boot requiring immediate mending, he was directed to a cobler. Unluckily it happened to be St. Crispin's holiday; and, instead of finding the cobler inclined for work, he was in the height of his jollity among his acquaintance. The Emperor acquainted him with what he wanted, and offered him a handsome gratuity -"What! friend," says the fellow, "do you know no better than to ask any of our craft to work on St. Crispin? Was it Charles the Fifth himself, I'd not do a stitch for him now-but if you'll come in and drink St. Crispin, do, and welcome, we are as merry as the Emperor can be." The Sovereign accepted the offer; but, while he was contemplating on their rude pleasure, instead of joining in it, the jovial host thus accosts him: " What, I suppose you are some courtier politician or other by that contemplative phiz; nay, by your long nose you may be a bastard of the Emperor's; but be who or what you will, you are heartily welcome -drink shout-here's Charles the Fifth's health." "Then you love Charles the 5th," replied the Emperor. "Love him!" says the son of St. Crispin, "aye, aye. I love his long noseship well enough; but I should love him much more, would be but tax us a little less-but what the devil have we to do with politics-round with the glasses and merry be our hearts." After a short stay, the Emperor took his leave, and thanked the cobler for his hospitable reception.-" That (cried he) you are welcome to- but I would not to-day have dishonoured St. Crispin to have worked for the Emperor.

Charles, pleased with the hones nature and humour of the fellow, sent for him next morning to court. You must imagine his surprise to see and hear his late guest was his sovereign-He feared his joke on his long nose must be punished with death. The Emperor thanked him for his hospitality, and, as a reward for it, bid him ask for what he most desired, and take the whole night to settle his surprise and his ambition. Next day he appeared and requested, that, for the future, the coblers of Flanders might bear for their arms a boot, with the Emperor's crown upon it, That request was granted, and as his am. bition was so moderate, the Emperor bid him make another. "If (says he) I am to have my utmost wishes, command that for the future the Company of coblers shall take place of the Company of shoemakers. It was accordingly so ordained, and to this day there is to be seen a chapel in I landers, adorned round with a boot, and an Imperal crown on it, and in all processions the Company of coblers takes place of the Company of shoemakers.

SIR PHILIP SIDNEY,

An authentic ancedory of Sidney will serve to illustrate the independence and in. trepidity of his mand :- White in a state of exile from his country, in France, he was one day hunting with the king, and being mounted on a fine English horse whose Their very oaths are of an original cast, and form and spirit caught the king's eye, he received a message that he would picase for oblige the king with his horse at his own strike my ear. There was one who was price; he answered that he did not classe to part with him. The king, determined to have no demal, gave orders to tender agination, "Thunder me dead;" and him the money, or seize the horse, which Dutch Sam astonished us by the following being made known to Siddley, he mist puly took a pistol and shot him, saying, that his poetical description of his manner of treating his opponents :- "When they walk horse was born a free creature, had served wise man, in the choice and use of his plea- round me, I break down their guard and a free man, and should not be mastered by give 'em a punch in the face; just like the la king of slaves."

The severity with which the passing of ounterfelt Bank of England notes is again unished, is probably owing to the failure all attempts to prevent their imitation .-Vhile those experiments promised sucess, it was usual to allow the person to slead guilty to that count of the indictment hich rendered them liable to transportaion, and to enter a noli prosequi to the rest. The inefficacy of capital punishnent in preventing crime, is demonstrated by the history of the bank of England. A entleman in London, lately made a wager ith a few friends with whom he was in empany, that he would in their presence make and pass a bank note in three hours, and won the wager. Among the numerous presentations to is majesty at Manover, we observe the name of Madam Kestner, who is described in the recently published "Letters from Vetzlar," as being the real Charlotte of the prows of Werter.

The news from Ireland continues to be most distressing nature. Murders are minitted under 'the very eye' of the ges of the land. The laws are openly agarded, and the authorities of the entry treated with contempt.

Marming stories are frequently spread Dublin, and the Privy Council assemble most daily at the Castle. The erection f fortifications at Dublin is carried on with reat activity. The castle gates are closed egularly at 4 o'clock every afternoon; and those on who are connected with the astle, or who have business with any of he members of government, have admitcance after that hour.

The marauders are continually strolling over the country by night, robbing, pluntering, murdering, and burning. stincipal object seems to be to pocure fire-TIMB.

Troops are continually marching from England to Ireland, and it is computed that 20,000 men are now on duty in that unhappy country. In addition to these, the militia of the disturbed districts were jut in requisition without distinction of re-

He has already disclosed the names of nearly 300 individuals engaged n these nocturnal disturbances. He has also assisted in the discovery of about thirly stands of arms.

One of the mails has been robbed, and the guard shot.

Dublin, says a private letter, presents coond edition of 1792 and 1803. Harriers are erected round the city, and the inhabiants compelled to shut up their houses at ight at night, and remain at home. Yeomen were at drill, and the watchmen were ... med with bills as long as pipes.

Is evidently ripe for rebellion, regicide and massacre. The king returned to the capital on the 4th of December. Extrardinary couriers, hearing addresses to the ng for a change of ministers, succeed ch other with astonishing rapidity; and ey are extremely violent.

The Spanish papers state that a dreadful accident occurred on the 31st of Oct. A case relative to the liberty of the press was to be tried before the tribunal. In order to admit a great number of persons, it was thought adviseable to hold the court in the convent of the Franciscam. The keeper of the convent intimated his apprehensions but he was not listened to. The floor soon gave way, and seventy persons were buried

NAPLES On the 28th of November, 16,000 Austrian troops were reviewed and exercised in The King rode with general Frimont. Among other exercises, they had a sham fight. We think that general had a sham fight. Pepe should have been there, as he is well skilled in fights of this sort. The crowd of spectators, says a letter, was immense, and as gay as Neapolitans generally are, when any thing helps them to forget the flight of time. They have been to see reviews of the French; the Carbonari; the Austrians; and to-morrow they would go to see the Turks with equal pleasure, if the Turks had by any means become masters of Na-

It is very confidently asserted that the Austrian army of occupation, will be reduced to 25,000 men, and that a further reduction will take place in March, if the country continues to remain as tranquil as it does at present.

A shock of an carthquake was felt at Naples about the 25th of November. Others have been felt in different parts of the kingdom, and considered as the consequences of the recession of the fires of Vesuvius.

The bishop of Aversa has been shot dead in broad day light, by a young man who had been of the Carbonari. He chose the public piazza for the scene, and advancing to the carriage in which the bishop was returning from church, shot him through the head.

It had been currently reported for several days, that Prussia was to furnish the emperor of Russia with an auxiliary force of 30,000 men, to act as occasion might require against the Turks. This story, however, was directly contradicted by the latest news from Berlin.

The Prussian government having ascertained the unhappy certainty that there is a deficiency of ten millions of dollars in its budget, which can only be covered by a loan, negociations have already been entered into with several banking houses.

An article from Warsew of December 4, states, that an ukase has been issued, prohibiting freemason lodges in Russia; they have been shut up since the 15th of October. This has excited the greater surprise, as the Emperor Alexander himself has been initiated into the mysteries of that order. The execution of this measure is inexplicable, except from motives of the highest importance.

War, and that without delay, between Russia and Turkey, is now universally considered as certain. The Russian troops are pouring down upon the Turkish frontier with tremendous parks of artillery .-Letters from Leipsic, dated December 18. state that an account had been received here of a Grand Council held at Peters burgh, and presided by the emperor Alexander, at which decisive measures were adopted with respect to the Porte. From Vienna, it is stated, that all foreigners employed in the Austrian States, as precepture or teachers, have without distinction, received orders to quit the country. It is added, that the education of youth, whether public or private, is to be exclusively confided to the Jesuits, or to the Redemptionists, who are an affiliation of that order!

DENMARK, &c. An article from Copenhagen, Dec. 8th, says, we continue to receive further accounts of the damage done on our coasts Many ships have been stranded, many lost their anchors and cables, and others perished. It is remarkable that in many places where these hurricanes have raged, they were accompanied with violent thunde storms. The number of ships and vessels lost in the Baltic and the Cattegat, during these storms is estimated at a hundred. The general bond of the King of Denmark for the loan of three millions sterling. has been deposited in the Bank of England, by the Danish Minister and the contractors, in the presence of a notary public.

THE NETHERLANDS. Preparations are said to be making for putting the marine of the Netherlands, in state of equipment; and, it is added, that France and Spain were adopting similar measures.

MOROCCO. An account from Ceuta, November 19 states that on the 7th, a grand salute of artillery was beard towards Tetuan, which continued the whole evening: and the Moors being asked the reason, said that Tetuan with a division of infantry of his uncle's army, who, with the rest of the army, was at that time at Benyasem. Or the 11th we heard another salute of twenty-two guns, and we learnt that a division of cavalry of Zeid's army having approached, as soon as the inhabitants of Tetuan perceived them, they saluted them with a discharge of artillery. We have not been able to learn the amount of this division, nor who command it; but we know that a body of troops, of all arms, has just been formed, which Zeid places under the command of his nephew, Muied Asbed Selon. It seems that the 1000 men with whom Muley Soliman entered Tangier, have returned to their homes, and that Ali has marched with his troops towards the west : It is not known for what purpose. According to these accounts, the moment is at hand when the fate of the uncle and the nephew will be decided.

PRANCE. A conspiracy had lately been detected at Saumur, a town in the department of the Maine et Loire. Previously to the discovery, it appears that there was a dreadful conflagration, the causes of which were not fully decided. It produced great consternation. It broke out on the evening of the 18th December. The civil and military authorities, the officers and students of the Military Colleges, and inhabitants of all classes, were active in their efforts to stop the progress of the devouring element, in which they did not succeed until midnight. Five persons perished, and four were griev ously, and it is feared, mortally wounded, on this calamitous occasion.

By a sketch of a debate in the Chamber of Deputies, which took place on Friday and Saturday, the 22d and 23d of December, we perceive that a sally was made upon the new ministry They were discussing the projet of a law proposing the collection and opening a credit for two hundred millions of francs, for the service of the first three m mths of the year 1822, and the ministers were attacked for not taking part in the debates, and accused of the same timid irresolution as their predecessors had manifeeted. There had been no political disturbances, nor commotions of any kind among the people.

TURKEY.

It appears that the Turkish people will not permit the government to accede to the RUSSIAN ULTIMATUM even were the Divan so disposed. Such is their hatred to the Christians, that they will encounter certain and inevitable destruction, rather than make to them the least concession.

The remnant of the Turkish fleet had re turned without effecting any thing.

PERSIA The Persians continue to advance victoriously. The news that Bagdad had fallen into their hands is confirmed, and it is again said that they have taken Trebisond, and totally destroyed a Turkish corps posted near Erzerum.

GREECE.

Accounts from Frankfort say, that the Greek Congress at Tripolizza intend to proclaim a Federative Republie, having at its head as President, Prince Demetrius Ypsilanti. Six states, it is added, are to form the Republic, namely, the Morea, Livadia, Thessaly, Macedonia, Epirus and the Islands.

An article from Corfu, of the 20th ult states, that notwithstanding the prohibitory measures of the Ionian Government, upwards of 20,000 muskets and bayonets had been furnished to the Greeks from the Islands of Cephalonia, Zante, and Cerigo .-The fortress of Arta was, it is stated, or the point of surrendering to the Greek force by which it was besieged.

The Greeks are so exasperated by continued wrongs, their minds have become so debased, and their manners brutalized by Turkish despotism, that their atrocities in several instances, have equalled those of the Turks. A dreadful massacre took place at Navarim, after the town had capitulated. Some of the inhabitants were cut to pieces others burnt, and several hundreds carried to a barren rock and starved to death.

Tripolizza also surrendered under treatnent equally ferocious; and when the Jewish nation offered to buy their lives, it was stated, as a retribution for the indignities offered to the Patriarch, their fate was decided on, and every soul was to be crucified. By one common consent the whole of the people-assembled together, and resolved to destroy themselves by poison, which was carried into effect on the spot.

The differences between Demetrius Ypsilanti, the Senate, and Military Chiefs, con tinue. The latter are all inclined to recog nize as Archistrategas the brave conquero of Tripolizza, whose heroic courage is generally admired. The choice must, however, be made in a general assembly, which will speedily be convoked. A strong division of the Greek fleet covers the ports that have been delivered. SWITZERLAND,

It is said that the representatives of the Swiss Cantons have signed a Convention, by which they have bound themselves to seize and deliver to the Austrian authorities, such of the subjects of the Lombardo Venetian kingdom as may have taken refuge in their inhospitable territories! Af ter this, we may expect to hear that they have received an Austrian garrison into Berne and Zurich. Such a proceeding would not really be so disgraceful as the proscription of which they have become the instruments. The celebrated BERGAMI, say accounts from Rome of Nov. 17, continues to live at Pesaro, where the chase is his diversion. He has in his stables, thirty very fine horses, His face is shadowed with very thick whiskers-his huntsmen and servants have adopted the seme fashion.

SECOND EDITION. SIX DAYS LATER.

The accounts from Spain are as late as the 18th of December, and are rather more favorable. The Cortes appear disposed to protect the King, and enforce his authority, but a portion of the members are very bitter in their hostility towards the ministry, and there is a wide difference of opinion what will be the result. Mina has yielded obedience to the orders of government and affairs have been satisfactorily settled

It is gratifying to find that Ireland is beginning to recover its tranquility. Seven convictions have taken place at Limerick, and the impression made on the peasantry by these trials, is such, that the Judges have returned to Dublin without proceeding to any of the other counties, to which it was originally intended that the commission should extend. Murders, however, were yet occasionally committed, and placards, learing the famous signature of "Captain Rock," were frequently posted up. A new Catholic Bill is in preparation, and will be brought forward early the ensuing session.

Great excitement prevailed throughout France, which seems to agitate all classes of the people. The report of the King's death is premature.

Preparations were making throughout Russia, which give evident proofs of approaching hostilities. Alexander is said to have a million of men under arms, and ready to march at his bidding Europe may be said to wait upon his beck-and perhaps, if Providence prolongs his life, the safety of the English establishment in India also. The Greeks coninued to be successful.

Three men who were arrested for passing coun terfeit money, and forged checks on the U.S. Branch Bank, at Savannah, (Geo.) in December last, have broke jail and escaped. They cut away one of the iron bars and part of the sill of the window—it appears that they had an accomplice on the outside, who furnished them with an augur and a chisel—the handle of the former was short to get it through the grates. They were pursued, and two of them taken about forty miles Accidents by Fire.—A lady in New-York, last week, was severely injured by her clothes taking fire while she was stirring it up—there was three small children in the room at the time, one of them was likewise burnt. A black woman in Go shen, N. Useful Invention in Spain .- The present species of capital punishment which the proposed penal code now recognizes is the garrote, by means of which the extinction of life seems the affair of an instant. The victim occupies a seat which is attached to an upright post, an iron collar is placed round his neck, and strangulation is preduced by turning half round a multiplying screw, which brings the collar close roun to the post. There is observed no convulsion, no movement of agony. The garrote is as expeditious as the guillotine, and it sheds no blood.

WARNING TO PROFANE SWEARERS.

An Edinburgh paper contains the following account of an appalling occurrence, which happened in December, near Dundee. Two men having betaken themselves to a course of hard drinking, formed the wild resolution of trying their powers at originality in swearing, or who could give utterance to the most horrific oath. The one having given vent to his conception, the other stood up, and protested that his comrade's oath was a mere trifle; saying he would give him a specimen; but just as his lips were in progress to mould the utterance, his mouth being stretched to the widest, and his arm raised on high, he was struck with dumbness and delirium, his face and his figure exhibiting a frightful spectacle. He was carried to the infirmary in the evening, and has since been discharged somewhat relieved.

Notwithstanding the letters said to have been received from our Consul at Liverpool, asserting the existence of a Commercial treaty with France, there is no truth in the report. ## MORE PIRACIES.

It is stated in a late New Orleans paper that 70 of the pirates belonging to the vessels captured and destroyed by the United States selir. Enterprize, have creeted two forts on Cape Antonio, for their defence. It adds—our gallant officers and soldiers stationed in the southern states, would rejoice to receive orders to attack, reduce, and bring to justice this horde of buccaneers. It seems that piracies are increasing instead of diminishing, notwithstanding the efforts of our ittle away force in those seas. We do hope Congress will take up the matter, and that without delay.—Why should the lives and property of our citizen be thus jeopardized and sacroficed, while three-fourths of our gallant navy is lying unemployed and dismantled?

On Thursday night, about 12 o'clock, as the Union Coach line was coming to the city from New-York, the foot-board suddealy gave way, when the driver and an outside passenger were precipitated to the ground, and the horses went on. The inside passengers, (seven in number) being mostly asleep, did not miss the driver and his companion, until they had got into the heart of the city. It being a close couch ere was no possibility of escaping the side door.-This they succeeded in opening, and jumped out in succession, every one of them receiving more or less injury: one very seriously. The horses continued their pace, and did not stop until they reached Gloucester Point, where the road terminates. Although the coach did not upset, it was entirely ruined, by running foul of trees, fences, &c.

On Tuesday afternoon, the remains of the Orphans, who perished in the fire of he Asylum, were buried in the ground belonging to the Independent Tabernacle, in Cherry-street. The Rev. [For the Saturday Evening Post.] ORPHAN ASYLUM.

There is no one who does not sympa-thize in the late awful calamity, which deprived so many orphans of a home. Evey one has believed, that it is an institution ormed to protect and rear up children bereft of parents. Those, indeed, who have been admitted into the Asylum, came under this denomination; but with circumstances attending, which have shut out more han three times the number that were unler the charge of the society previous to the conflagration of the building. It is not generally known that none but children whose parents were of some standing in life would be received: while others, whom Providence had reared up in Poverty, were debarred of the privileges which the former possessed. I do not thus make this statement, with sinisters views.

My intention is to make it a general in stitution, and not to be confined to a few individuals gifted with health and strength. No child who is the least crippled or disordered will be received. They must possess the full vigour of life, and unattended by any seated complaint.

While the Society looks up to the citi zens for support, let it be extended to all classes and conditions of children.

I am not unsupported while I make this declaration that the Society is restricted to the conditions which I have stated. A Guarian of the Poor applied for the of a certain number of children entirely destitute of friends: the Managers refused their admission, with the exception of five, for whose board the Guardians had to pay. It might be answered that their funds were not sufficient-I will grant it-But to whom did they look to for support? The Public. Well, since the Public supports it, the Managers should receive every orphan child that is applied for.

I am aware that I may offend a great number of persons by thus attempting to dampen the ardour of the charitable, to revive their funds I wish to be understood to the contrary. I hope, sincerely, the Asylum may be rebuilt on a larger scale, and that it be made truly an Asylum for M. A. the Orphan.

DRAMATIC SUMMARY.

DRAMATIC SUMMARY.

It is to be expected that the erection of the New-Theatre in Chesnut street, will be immediately put into operation, Mr. Strickland, the architect, who had been written to, during his tour through Europe, to expedite his return, having just arrived. Of the general architectural knowledge of this gentleman it is useless to say one word—of his Seenic and Theatrical designs, those who are associated with that husiness, know so well how to appreciate him, that their movements have been determined alone by the period of his return.

WALNUT STREET - Mr. Philipp's Concert for the benefit of the Orphan Asylum takes place this evening at the Theatre. He will be assisted by Mrs. Burke and Mrs. Lefolle, and Messrs. Nichols Paura stuezt.—The liberality of the citizens of Philadelphia needs no comment—they have been ever ready to patronize those who seek to add to their amusements, and to foster the genus of their own soil when it offers itself in an anquestionable shape. Modest merit, certainly, should never be chilled by neglect—though, unfortunistly, it too often happens, that the presuming adventurer snatches the hard-earned laurels from his less-designing adversary, and bears them off in triumph, Mr. Porter's benefit is announced for this evening. The claims of this gentleman need not be told—we know be is deservedly a favourite at the Prune street Theatre—and being an American, we have no reasonable idea to suppose, those claims will be lessened in the public estimation. On a former hight, Mr. Porter waived his pretensions when it was intended by the other House to appropriate their proceeds for the benefit of the Orphan Asylum. Something similar has again occurred, but now it cannot have an effect prejudicial to his interest, as the sums already collected are an equivalent to the necessities of that institution. FOREIGN—In the True Briton we find a critique on Mr. KEAN, who performed at Drury Lane in the tragedy of Hamlet. It is said his performance bore evident marks of improvement; but while he rose to transcendent excellence in some parts, he sunk even to lame mediocrity in others. He took some liberies with the text, to which the audience was not reconciled.

EPITAPH ON A MR. PECK.
Here lies a Peck, which some men say,
Was first of all a Peck of elay;
This wrought with enrious skill while fresh,
Became at length a Peck of flesh.
Full sixty year? Peck felt lifels bubble,
Till death reliev'd this Peck of trouble.
Thus fell poor Peck as all things must;
And here he lies—a Peck of dust.

Speck and Span.

This is a very common expression, ap plied to any thing quite new, but the words appear to want explanation. The most obvious derivation is from the Italian, opicata de la spanna, fresh from the hand, or, as we say in another proverbial phrase of our own, " fresh from the mint." There are numerous Italian words in our language, which were brought in before the Reformation, when it was not only customary for our young men of family to complete their studies in that country, but many Italians resided here as collectors of the papal imposts, or as holders of our best benefices. This certainly is a more rational etymology than that which derives the phrase from a spear, because the head of that weapon was formerly called a spike, and the stuff a span; thereby meaning that every part is

My Eye Betty Martin.

This is a vulgarism to be met with only a low companies, though it has sometimes been transplanted from thence, and introduced into noble and even princely mansions. It is an expression of contempt and defiance, when a person is not to be onvinced or sasicied with any thing that s said in the way of explanation, in oppoition to which the indignant sceptic is to exclaim: " 'Tis all my eye Betty Martin." Of these strange and apparently unmeaning words the following appears to be a correct definition. A man going once into a church or chapel of the Romish persuasion on St. Martin's day, heard the Latin Litany chaunted, when the words "Mihi Beate Martin" occurred so often, that upon being asked how he liked the service, he replied it was nothing but nonsense or something worse, as from begining to end "it was all my eye Betty Mar-

A curious cause of War.

In the year 1005, some soldiers of the commonwealth of Modena, ran away with a bucket from a public well, belonging to the state of Bologna. The implement might be worth a shilling, but it produced a quarrel, which was worked up into a long and bloody war. Henry the king of Sar dinia, for the emperor Henry, the second assisted the Modenese to keep possession of the bucket; and in one of the battles he was made prisoner. His father, the emperor, ohered a chain of gold that would encircle Bologna, which is seven miles in compass, for his son's ransom, but in vain -After twenty-two years imprisonment. and his father being dead, he pined away and died. His monument is still extant in the church of the Dominicans. This fatal bucket is still exhibited in the tower of the cathedral of Modena, enclosed in an iron cage. Tasso has very humourously described it in his Della Sechia.

The reader may not have remarked, that in the world abstemious, the five vowels of the alphabet stand in their grammatical order-a, e, i, o, u. The word facetious presents the same accidental singularity; and facetiously brings in the y.

It is calculated that the number of deaths in the United States, produced directly by Intemperance, amounts to about 30,000 ananaly; but the number whom it destroys indirectly, is much greater, say 100,000.

An important recent Chemical discovery.

THE ladies and gentlemen of this city and else THE ladies and gentlemen of this city and elsewhere, are respectfully informed, that John Oldridge has fortunately discovered, by the power of chemistry, the grand desideratum of preventing thair from falling off in FORTY-EIGHT HOURS. This balm will most absolutely, in the course of a short time, make the Hair grow heathly and thick. J. O. is well aware that many fraudulent and impositions Oils, &c have been imposed on the public, and therefore prejudice will be severe against his discovery, until trial shall convince his patrons that such a thing exists in nature as a certain preventative against the loss of hair. This valuable balm will cause whiskers and beards to grow rapidly. No danger need be apprehended to the human system by the application of this capillary restorative. The public may rest assured that it helps nature, and is perfectly harmless.

Prepared and sold, at $1 a pint, or 50 cents for a half pint bottle, by JOHN OLDRIDGE, No. 55½ South Front street, Philadelphia.
